

Dragging the City into Paradise

Have you ever wondered why people have come up to their cottage only to drag so much of the city with them? You know them. It's you! It's me!

We leave huge garden lights, yard lights, entrance lamps and streetlights, which blind us to the night sky. Next we add radios and noise of all sorts to drive away the last of the wildlife and we're left wondering "What went wrong".

Please, if you must have an outside light, turn it off when you have finished with it or just leave it off.

Enjoy the stars and moonlight!

Loud music carries a surprising distance over water. Leave the small creatures alone. Keep your dogs and cats quiet and out of mischief, at home. Respect your neighbours. If we can't curb our behaviour, what will be left for us is... another suburb by a lake.

Think about it! Save what is so special to us. It's in our hands.
